

I Was Vaguely Aware Of Something

ZLB

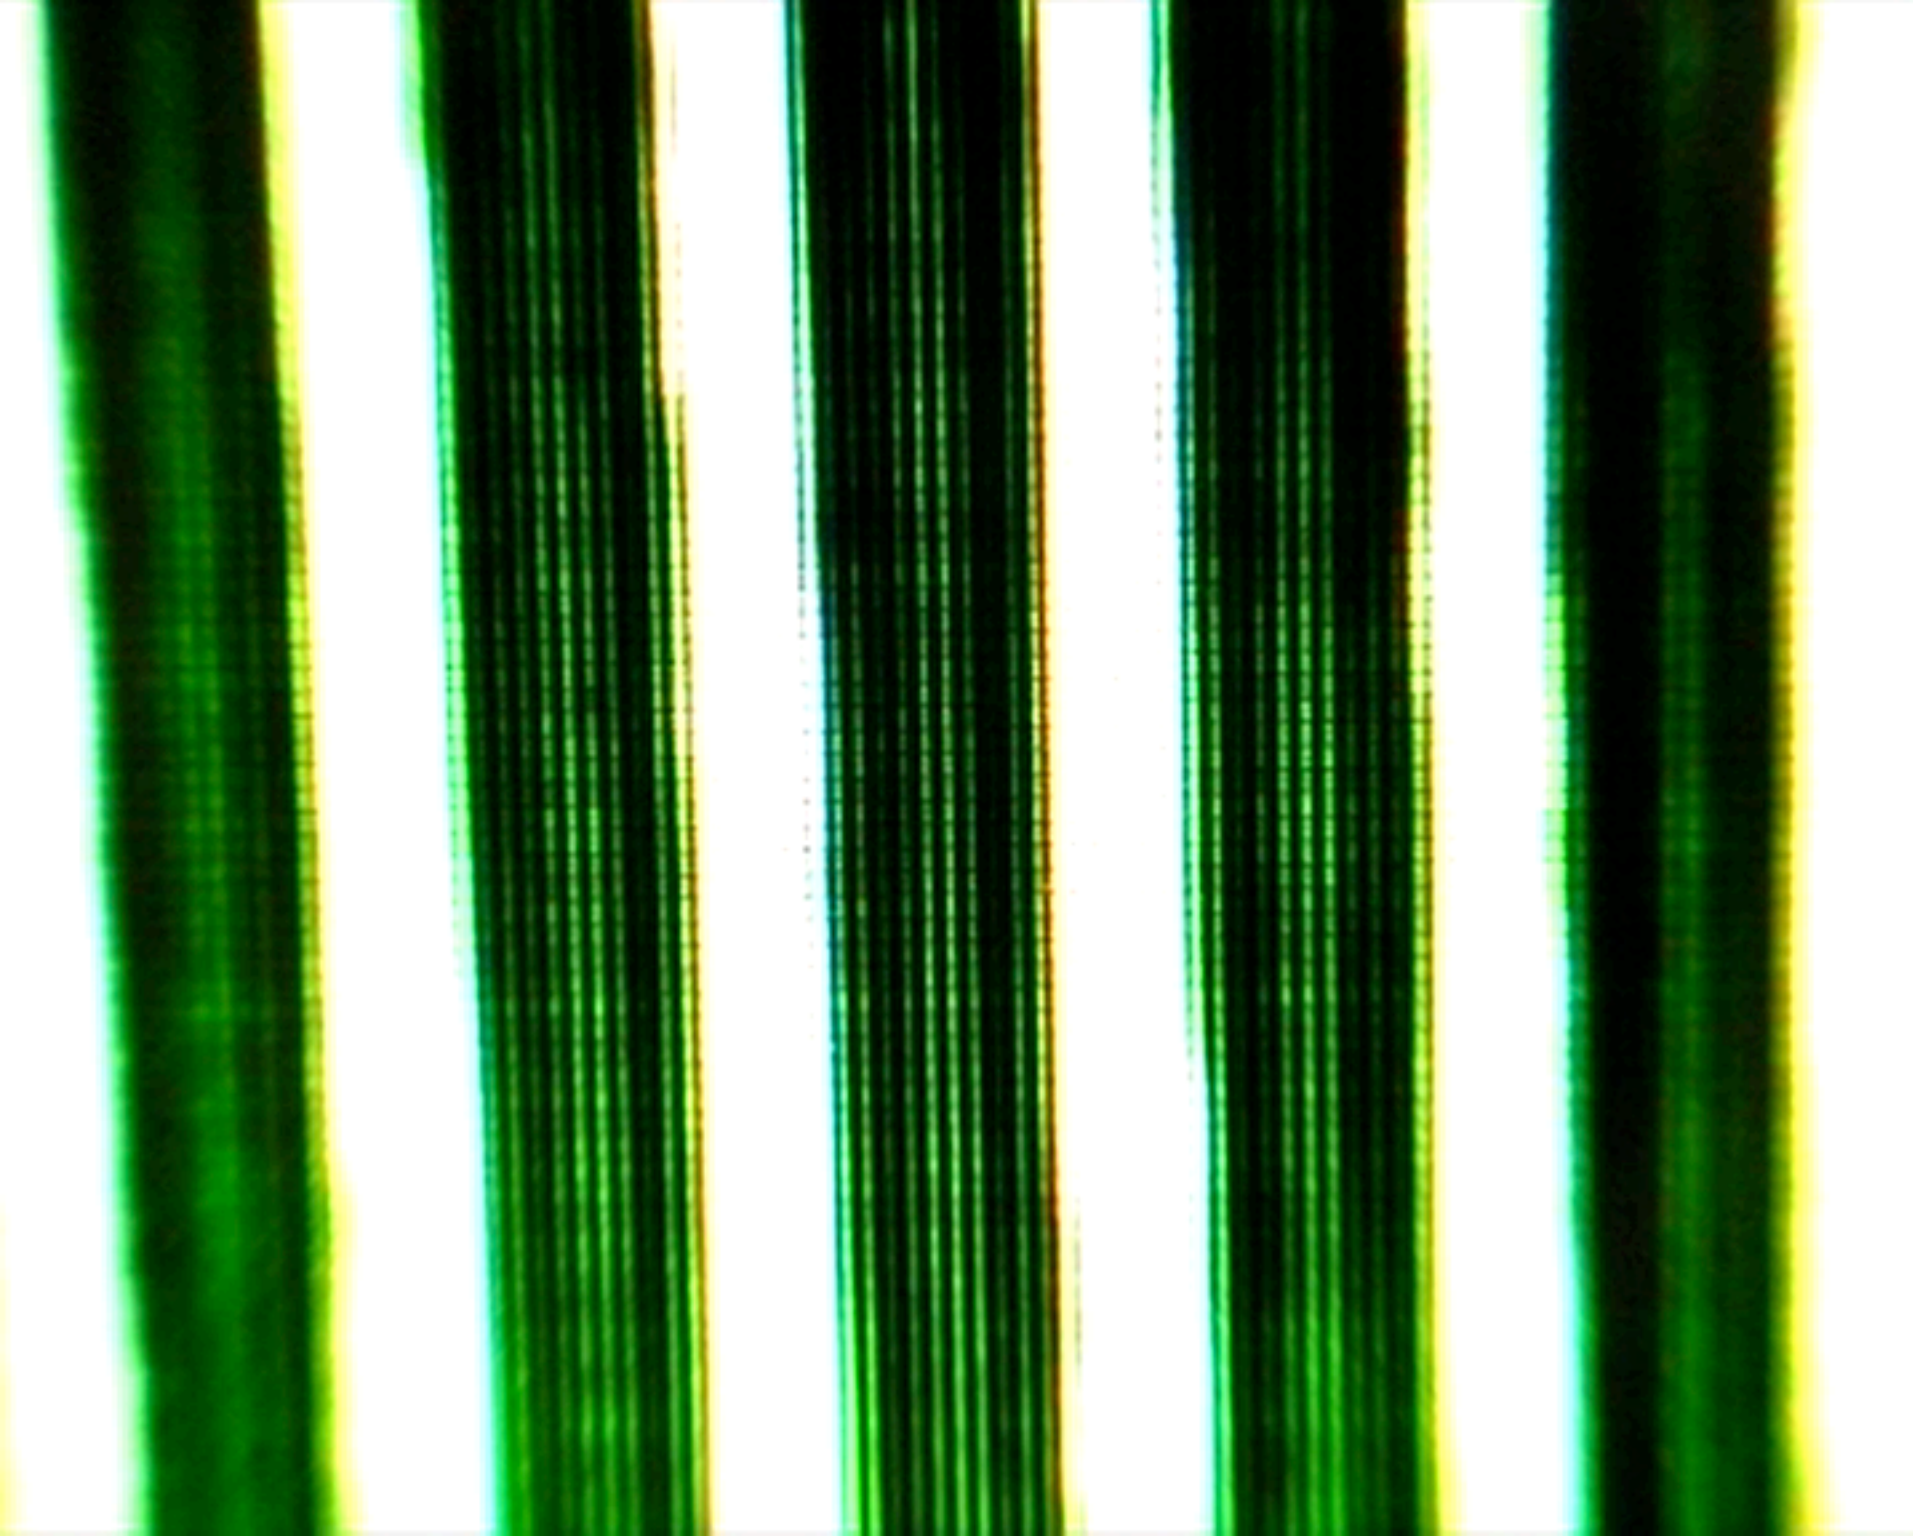

1. I Was Vaguely Aware Of Something
2. I did not have a strong feeling of Presence, but more a wonderful feeling of converting energy into action
3. Enjoyment seems beside the point
4. But a change is occurring and i can't talk myself out of it
5. When I become totally still, a huge burst of energy is released
6. The parts of myself seemed to either separate uncontrollably or run together into someone I don't know

1,2 and some parts of 4 and 5 came out of a segmentation based generative process where a finished track was used as the starting material for another track. This was not pre-planned, but I'm delighted with the fact that i keep working with the same original material and taking it in several different directions. 4 and 5 also had some bits of improvisation on guitar with pedal effects. 3 and 6, despite some minor EQ, are straight recordings of improvisations using guitar processed through a max/msp patch.

This music works best in an immersive environment: it was recorded in surround for four speakers, using mostly ambisonic panning. A stereo binaural version is also available. It should preferably be heard somewhat loud and with a surround setup for full enjoyment.
