I miss you was recorded in The Hague, The Netherlands, during the months of May and June 2009. All tracks are complete (uncut) live improvisations performed with my MISS computer-based instrument* without further additions. Nevertheless, the six tracks presented intend to create a compact work, an exploration of some peculiarities of the instrument.

The tracks contained in this work are, in a way, incomplete. They were recorded by directly connecting the output of the digital synthesizer MISS to a recording software running in the same computer. Therefore, the music here contained never met any real space, and the many places, loudspeakers and rooms where it will be played back will influence and complete the work in as many different ways.
